

THE WILMINGTON JOURNAL
WILMINGTON, N. C.
FRIDAY, DECEMBER 23, 1870.
[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE JOURNAL.]
FROM RALEIGH.
IMPEACHMENT.

GOVERNOR HOLDEN ARRAIGNED—
LIEUT. GOVERNOR CALDWELL
ASSUMES THE DUTIES OF
GOVERNOR, JUDGE WAR
REN PRESIDENT OF
THE SENATE.

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 20.

The members of the House of Representatives, Messrs. Spaww, Broadfoot, Welch, Johnson, Dunham, Scott and Gregory, accompanied by the Committee of the Whole House of Representatives, appeared before the bar of the Senate at 11 o'clock and exhibited eight articles of impeachment against Gov. Holden.

After announcing that the Senate would take due order on the articles, President Caldwell retired from the chair to assume the duties of Governor.

Hon. Edward J. Warren, Senator from Beaufort, was then elected President of the Senate. Gov. Holden made no opposition to surrendering the office. The Court of Impeachment will convene as soon as Chief Justice Pearson arrives.

Stop Thief!

The books show that Gov. Bullock, of Georgia, has squandered, as "contingencies," up to the present time, $339,439.82! Bullock is heavy on "contingencies," but then it takes a great deal to keep his henchmen true to him.

The Legislature.

The proceedings of Saturday in both branches of the Legislature were without special interest. In the Senate the Convention Bill was debated and amended, but the final action was postponed until yesterday.

The House was occupied upon private bills, among which was the one concerning Wilmington, which passed. The Senatorial election for Alamance and Guilford was ordered for the 24th of December, although the Governor had issued proclamation fixing it for the 14th of January.

Frank Findings.

Some of the Conservative papers of the State seem to think that the highest duty of newspapers is to find fault. If they would always be sure that what they complain of was wrong, or that the alleged fault had been committed at all, there might be some point to these objections. No good surely is to be accomplished by indulging in unnecessary and unfounded complaints. This show of honesty is not what the people want. It is the substance they desire. We cannot, with impunity, complain of or abuse the leaders of our own party for imaginary or trivial shortcomings without injury to the cause we all have at heart.

We do not, on the other hand, believe that party men should be upheld if their public conduct is not in keeping with strict honesty, exact justice and the high standard of reformation and economy in our State administration set up by the Conservative party. This much we must demand from our representatives. But we are disposed to allow the members of the Legislature time to develop their policy before we find fault; we will not attack them upon trivial matters, even if we may differ from them.

We find in a Conservative paper a severe censure upon the members of the Legislature for voting themselves five dollars per diem for their services. In the first place, no such bill has passed. In the second place, we are not prepared to condemn it if it had been done. The people of North Carolina are willing to pay their representatives a reasonable compensation for their labors. They do not ask men to leave their families and homes and businesses, to give their time and services for nothing. One thing is certain, that what ever may be the sum voted themselves, it is expected of the members to render services to North Carolina worth millions of dollars—may, benefits which cannot be estimated in dollars and cents. We agree with the distinguished Senator from Anson, that if the only difference between the Conservative and Radical parties consisted in a saving of two dollars a day in the pay received by members of the Legislature, the August victory would be a very fruitless one.

We do not know at what the per diem will be fixed, but we are satisfied that the action in this matter will be just to the people of the State.

Another finds fault that it is proposed to raise the salary of the Attorney-General. The salary of the Attorney-General has not been increased, and if it had we see no cause for a cry of extravagance. He is not paid enough, and we should at least be just. The salaries of useless officers are being cut down to nothing, and others materially decreased, to render the proportion between the salary and the services rendered something like equal. If in the opinion of the Legislature the salary paid to the Attorney-General is not in proportion to his duties, we are perfectly willing to leave the matter to the decision of those who have already shown such good judgment upon this question.

Yet another paper launches its thunderbolts at the Legislature because it has agreed to pay a fair and reasonable price for printing. As custodians of the public moneys we do not ask that body to take better care of it than they do of their own. We are willing for them to make contracts for printing and for other things at prices which are just to both parties. We do not believe that the people of North Carolina are unwilling to pay those who work for them a fair compensation. Surely if this be an error it is not one which calls for such special denunciation.

Then, again, there is another set of fault-finders, who think they make a great display of independence and fairness in denouncing the action of the Senate in naming Major William A. Smith, of Alamance, and retaining Colonel John A. Gilmer, of Guilford, because they both held certificates of election from the Twenty-sixth Senatorial District. Both were elected, say they, and should be given their seats, or if the election of one was illegal, also was the other. All the reputation for superior honesty and justice obtained by such a course is cheaply earned. We admire that boldness which dares to do right regardless of personal or party influences, but we do not covet the advantage which arises from fanning upon your enemy because he may have personal or official influence.

No one could vote to retain Major Smith in his seat without endorsing, wittingly or unwittingly, the military crusade which Governor Holden inaugurated against the people of Alamance, and no one could vote to unseat Colonel Gilmer without being obliged to vote to unseat Judge Smith, as Attorney General, or Hon. J. M. Leach, as member of Congress.

There was a legal election in a part of the Senatorial District where the people were not proclaimed in insurrection, and where no armed soldiers appeared at the polls. Why, then, men who complied faithfully with the laws of the State should be deprived of their votes we cannot tell. Governor Holden and his party friends, who endorsed his action, have no right to claim advantages from his crimes, nor should innocent people suffer for them. No other decision could have rendered full justice to all parties and none other would have been proper.

Still another class of fault-finders are dissatisfied with the impeachment of the Governor because it is of doubtful policy and will be attended with some cost. We have little patience with men who place such paltry considerations in the balance with the sacred rights of property, of freedom of speech, and of the press, of personal liberty, which the Governor so ruthlessly violated. There are wrongs for which no motives of policy can atone, and there are rights for the loss of which no money can compensate.

Elections.

Quite a number of vacancies in the General Assembly are to be filled on Saturday next, 24th inst. In Alamance the election has been declared invalid, and in Caswell no one received the certificate of election to the Legislature from the Sheriff. In Nash there is a vacancy, caused by the death of the representative.

Captain James A. Graham is the Conservative candidate for the Senate from Alamance and Guilford, and Major William A. Smith is the Radical candidate. Colonel A. C. McAllister is running for the House on the Conservative ticket, and White is the Radical candidate. In Caswell Livingston Brown, Esq., is the Conservative candidate for the Senate, and Colonel E. B. Withers and Yancey Jones for the House of Representatives. Dr. Drake is the Conservative candidate for the House in Nash county.

The North Carolina Senators.—It is stated in North Carolina papers that Senator Abbott will exert himself to prevent the removal of Governor Vance's disabilities, and in the event that the action of Congress is such as to fill which Vance has been chosen. The ground upon which this claim is based is that he (Senator Abbott), received the next highest number of votes in the Senatorial election, and is therefore, entitled to the seat should Governor Vance continue under the Congressional ban. In taking this position Senator Abbott will oppose the wishes of a number of the most influential republican journals. He is making a personal matter of a very important national question, namely, the restoration of harmony all over the Union. The Republican party cannot stand the removal of Governor Vance's disabilities, and his organization and the sooner Senator Abbott backs down gracefully from his untenable position the better it will be for the party he is supposed to represent.—N. Y. Herald.

We supposed that the silly efforts of one or two brainless editors to force General Abbott into the Senate would meet with proper rebuke from honest and intelligent Radicals at the North. We have no doubt that General Abbott would jump at this illegal and violent usurpation of office if permitted. It would be altogether in keeping with the great Southern carpet-bagger, and quite as constitutional and honorable as the tenure by which he holds his present seat.

Governor Holden.

"It is rumored here to-night," says a late Raleigh telegram, "that General B. F. Butler, the famous impeacher, will come down to defend Holden, who finds it difficult to obtain an efficient corps of counsel among the members of the bar belonging to his party."

"The Governor was impeached on Wednesday, professed religion on Friday, and quitted a sensation is created this evening by the announcement that he will be publicly baptised to-morrow, (Sunday) in the Baptist church in this city."

To which the New York Herald responds: "Governor Holden goes to his impeachment as if he were going to be hanged. On Friday he professed religion, and to-day he is to be baptised. He might have entertained some hope, even after he chose to accept these familiar accompaniments of the scaffold, but he has cut away all chance of safety by securing Ben Butler as his counsel. Ben was the evil genius of his client in the last impeachment trial he was engaged in, and he is not likely to be more lucky in North Carolina, where the jury he must influence have doubtless long had an inordinate craving for his blood."

Our Shipping Interest.

The general decay of American shipping, in other words, the diminution of vessels in number and tonnage for the last decade is admitted and has attracted general attention. It is attributed to the war, the navigation acts, so far as they prevent the purchase of foreign built craft, the tariff upon articles which enter into the construction of ships, and the increase of steamers.

The subject seems now seriously to engage the attention of Congress, and particularly of a portion of our Northern brethren, always distinguished for an enlightened regard to their own interest.

Our city has participated in the loss to which we refer.

A recent stroll along the wharves, an unusual stir of life, and an unwonted number of vessels evoked recollections of the past periods of thrift, when we could count sometimes one hundred vessels in the harbor, and when our West India trade was large and lucrative, the era of McDougal, Lazarus, Dickinson, and Potter. Wilmington then, as now, furnished more varied and a better assorted cargo for Southern markets than any other port. We had ship yards and ship chandlers and many seamen. Then Wilmington was, undoubtedly, the best market in the Union for sugars, molasses, &c.

It is true the lamentable war in Cuba sadly interferes with the revival of trade with that island; but all things human have an end—even a goat, as an urchin remarked the other day, when laying his hand upon Billy's head he said, "Pa, this is Billy's bad-end."

We invite the attention of our merchants to this matter. Let them prepare to seize the earliest opportunity to regain what we have lost. Our railways now render Wilmington but little more than a way station. Steamers to Northern ports, each driving out of the trade a score of sail vessels, add but little to our wealth.

Great cities are the growth of commerce. Our situation in opening to us the door of commerce is our advantage over inland towns. Let us make the most of it. The magnitude and prosperity of a city is not dependent upon the depth of water upon its bar or in its harbor. Liverpool, for instance, has outstripped Portsmouth and Plymouth in Europe, Baltimore and New Orleans have beaten Norfolk in our country. Capital, intelligence and energy command success. If we cannot float a Great Western we can send out the cargo of this mammoth in a dozen smaller vessels.

We submit it, as affecting our interest here, that a multitude of sloops, schooners and brigs would more conduce to our wealth than a few ships or steamers of the largest tonnage; and we insist that capital thus invested will, as heretofore, yield directly and indirectly an interest that will soon enrich. We regret the absence of that movement and bustle that Jack Tar always creates, and that formerly animated Water street so signally. In despite of unpleasant incidents, sailor taverns, lumberboats and lumbermen, grog shops, river and big water, we shall hail with delight the restoration of prosperity in this line of business.

Impeachment.

2. An accusation or charge brought against a public officer for maladministration in his office.—Webster.

The impeachment of Governor Holden by the House of Representatives has put on foot many inquiries in regard to the effect of this action and the manner of the further prosecution of that official.

The enquiry is often made whether it is thought Governor Holden will be impeached, when really the probabilities of his conviction is sought to be ascertained. Governor Holden has been impeached. The House resolved that he be impeached of high crimes and misdemeanors in office. Speaker Jarvis, in giving his charge to the Committee of the House, who were appointed to go to the bar of the Senate and acquaint that body of the action of the House, said: "You are hereby appointed to appear at the bar of the Senate, in the name of the House of Representatives and all the good people of North Carolina, to impeach William W. Holden, Governor of North Carolina, of high crimes and misdemeanors in office."

Representative Welch in appearing at the bar of the Senate, after referring to the business which brought the Committee there, said: "I impeach him in the name of all the Representatives of North Carolina, whose national character he has dishonored. I impeach him in the name of all the people of North Carolina whose laws, rights and liberties he has subverted."

So, too, Representative Sparrow, in reporting to the House, after returning from the Senate, said: "We impeached, as we were directed to do, William W. Holden, Governor of North Carolina, &c."

The formal impeachment of the Governor is therefore complete. It remains now for the Senate to organize itself into a court of impeachment for this trial. By an act of the Legislature, ratified 10th day of April, 1869, the Chief Justice of the State must preside when the Governor is impeached. The Lieutenant Governor being effected by the result the reason of this regulation is apparent. In the impeachment trial of President Johnson, Senator Wade, of Ohio, the President pro tem of the Senate, who would have been President of the United States in case of the conviction of Mr. Johnson, insisted upon his right to take his seat on the floor of the Senate during the trial and to participate therein. Objection was made and overruled, and he took part in the trial and voted for conviction. If this was, indeed, his privilege, his breach would have been more honored than his observance.

The Chief Justice has no special powers resulting from his official position. He is only the presiding officer of the Senate while sitting for the trial of impeachment of the Governor, and has no powers differing from those of the Lieutenant Governor while presiding over the Senate as a Court of Impeachment, which he would do were any other than the Governor to be tried.

It is the duty of the Presiding Officer of the Court of Impeachment, whether it be the Lieutenant Governor or the Chief Justice, to direct all necessary preparations in the Senate Chamber; to make and issue by himself or by the Clerk of the Senate, all orders, mandates, writs and precepts authorized by law or by the Senate; to direct all forms of procedure during the trial, and to decide in the first instance, without division, all questions of evidence and incidental questions, but the same shall, on demand of one-fifth of the members present, be decided by yeas and nays. The Chief Justice has no veto upon any question during the trial, but pronounces decision only as the organ of the Senate with its assent.

The Governor is not required to appear and answer the articles of impeachment until the Senate is organized as a Court. This he can do either in person or by Attorney. The Senate cannot so organize for the trial of the present impeachment until the Chief Justice is properly notified by the Senate, with a request for his attendance.

When these formalities are completed, which we suppose will be done during the present week, a reasonable time will be allowed to the Governor to answer the articles, and to prepare for his defense. We suppose any reasonable time, not exceeding a month, will be allowed the Governor to file his answer and prepare his defense. The Senate of the United States allowed President Johnson but ten days to file answer, and six days to prepare for trial. The Council for the President applied for longer time, but their very reasonable request was denied. We suppose, therefore, that the trial will begin between the middle and last of January.

As some inquiries have been made in regard to the suspension of the Governor from office during his trial it may be well to quote a portion of Article 3, Section 12 of the State Constitution.

"In case of the impeachment of the Governor, his failure to qualify, his absence from the State, his inability to discharge the duties of his office, or in case the office of Governor shall in anywise be vacant, the Governor, first, for twenty days of the office shall devolve upon the Lieutenant Governor until the disabilities shall cease, or a new Governor shall be elected and qualified."

In conformity with this requirement of the Constitution the General Assembly, in April 1869, passed an act which declares that "every officer impeached shall be suspended from the exercise of his office until his acquittal."

It is under these provisions of the law, therefore, that Governor Holden has been impeached, it requires the concurrence of two-thirds of the Senators present, and not two-thirds of the whole number of Senators. In a full Senate thirty-four would be required for conviction.

We have referred to these matters in some detail, believing that the particulars we have given will correct erroneous opinions in some, and be of interest to others who have not had the time nor opportunity to investigate the subject for themselves.

We know that the people of the entire State will watch the proceedings of this impeachment trial with the profoundest interest. While we have labored earnestly to have Governor Holden impeached, we have not done so as a partisan, but because we believed that he had outraged the laws of the State and had violated the rights and illegally jeopardized the lives of the people. Now that he is about to be brought to trial we must heartily pray, in the language of Representative Welch, in impeaching the Governor at the bar of the Senate, that God, the God of eternal justice, may protect the right.

Terrible Accident on the W. C. & A. R. R.—FIVE MEN INJURED.—A very painful accident occurred on the line of the Wilmington, Columbia & Augusta R. R., near this city, on last Sunday night, by which two white and three colored men were injured, one of the former very seriously.

About 9 o'clock an engine and tender, engaged in shifting cars from the shops to the new depot, when about 3 miles from the shops ran over a cow and was thereby thrown from the track, the engine being completely overturned. There were on the engine at the time Mr. Henry Grady, the engineer, Capt. Dukes, a freight conductor and three colored men. As the engine fell Mr. Grady and Capt. Dukes were caught under the engine house, the hot steam and water escaping upon them from the boiler. Mr. Grady broke his leg, and was thrown out of the engine and into a ditch, from whence he managed to scramble to the track. He then made his way to the ferry and was sent across to the city. He went immediately to the office of Dr. J. F. King, who was, fortunately, there at the time, and who at once dressed his wounds and afterwards procured a buggy and sent him home. The Doctor reports him as being badly injured, his face being severely scalped, and the flesh on his hands and arms being burned almost to a crisp.

He suffered very much yesterday, having swollen a great deal, with both eyes closed and lying perfectly helpless. As there are no internal injuries Dr. King thinks that he may recover, although it is impossible to predict the result.

Capt. Dukes was slightly burned in the face, his wounds having been dressed by Dr. E. A. Anderson. The injuries received by the three colored men are very slight.

Highway Robbery.—One of the most audacious highway robberies that we have ever heard of in this section was brought to our notice yesterday. It seems that a young man named Nathan Humphrey, a son of Sheriff Humphrey, of Onslow county, while on the way to his home on last Friday night, when about 8 miles from the city, was attacked by two negroes, who succeeded in getting from him some $40 in currency. There was some $80 in a trunk, which was in the cart, which the robbers did not get. Mr. H.'s horse became unmanageable, they became frightened at the noise and left.

Mr. Humphrey did not dream of danger, and was riding quietly along at the time, being only some half-mile behind several other carts, which, however, he did not overtake until he arrived at the next feeding place. Fortunately he received no injury to his person during the melee that occurred. He received a cut, however, across the breast, which pierced through an overcoat, a vest and two shirts, nearly grazing the skin. He was unable to recognize the attacking party, but suspicion is pointing strongly to two colored individuals.

Governor McClurg, of Missouri, has appointed D. T. Jewett, of St. Louis, United States Senator, to fill the vacancy caused by Senator Drake's appointment as Chief Justice of the Court of Claims.

For the Journal.
WESTERN CORRESPONDENCE.

BY FORINACK.

Old and New—By the Way—Sleeping Cars—Stone Mountain—Atlanta—The Girl of the Period—Specimen of a Class—The Cash Box—A Word from Fanny—son.

Going west I find to be quite a different affair from my juvenile conception, which found its embodiment in the inevitable covered wagon. Shaggy horses with mud-stained hoofs, the greasy "chist" and bed-clothes, brood of flaxen-haired children, mother-families looking out from the shadow of a poke bonnet and covert of pipe-smoke, "old man" tending along-side with whip in hand and that well known, bob tailed, invaluable dog, "good for coons and every other varmint under the sun," following the fortunes of the family from the old country. Exploding our conception, like a miniature balloon, we make the start with our goods and chattels in money and a half dozen trunks, draw on a pair of fresh kids as we leave the "Parrell" in Wilmington, and with our strapped rug, and packet of segars in our overcoat pockets step aboard the Southern train on the Wilmington, Columbia and Augusta Road, have our hot breakfast, warm dinner and tea at our usual hour, along the way; enjoy our sleeping quarters, and a thousand miles from our starting point find ourselves as fresh as a wild goose after a plunge in Blawie's Falls.

Passing through South Carolina one sees those endless fields of cotton, all now of that miserable dead-leaf color, save for the last scattered pickings, the inevitable Coffee finishing up with a languor that stops to gaze at the passing train, to nurse the fire that halves his row or roasts his "laters" at the same. Then there is the swamp, green now only with "bonnets" and mistletoe and cane; gray with tilled fields, bleakly floating over mournful cypress trees, like crape from widowed brows.

We are glad when we come where the land swells into sand hills, near the confluence of the Congaree and Wateree. There are pretty places in Orangeburg district, a handsome college and somewhere down there the Claflin University.—At Branchville we change conductors, but not cars, and afterwards watching a glorious sunset, a gradual rising of stars, and at eight o'clock we cross the Savannah river and slowly pass through the streets of Augusta, with its wide, beautiful streets, and its glimmering street-lamps, giving us glimpses which impress us with the elegance of the city. We are going right through, however, make but a momentary stop, long enough to step aboard another train, fitted up with every appliance for comfort, sleeping-cars, with rich curtains looped aside from luxurious couches, sections with sliding doors and cosy mattresses, clean sheet, soft pillows and warm blankets, where one may slumber, lulled by the muffled din of the rapid moving train. Very different from the old-fashioned bolt-up-right seats where a fellow could indeed indulge in the luxury of recumbency, but could not lie at his length, nor stretch himself with impunity, without at least risking crick, headache and backache. Instead, we sleep refrainingly, and are wakened by a servant, who blacks our boots and supplies us with fresh water, soap and towels for our toilet.

With the daylight we step for breakfast at Stone Mountain. It is an isolated, pyramidal shaped peak in Northern Georgia, giving its name to an incipient town of probably several hundred inhabitants. We stand for a moment on the balcony of our breakfast house, watching that grand sentinel mount, a flaming cherub in the very dawn, guarding an Eden, grand in its isolation, like the great intellects that loom up in loneliness among the mediocre herd. Then we enter the nice dining room and eat with keen relish the hot-buttered buttercracks, beefsteak and rice, and an obliging waiter brings us a tray of fruit, and are wakened by a servant, who blacks our boots and supplies us with fresh water, soap and towels for our toilet.

With the daylight we step for breakfast at Stone Mountain. It is an isolated, pyramidal shaped peak in Northern Georgia, giving its name to an incipient town of probably several hundred inhabitants. We stand for a moment on the balcony of our breakfast house, watching that grand sentinel mount, a flaming cherub in the very dawn, guarding an Eden, grand in its isolation, like the great intellects that loom up in loneliness among the mediocre herd. Then we enter the nice dining room and eat with keen relish the hot-buttered buttercracks, beefsteak and rice, and an obliging waiter brings us a tray of fruit, and are wakened by a servant, who blacks our boots and supplies us with fresh water, soap and towels for our toilet.

"Western girls," the "girls of the period," say in the very midst of their spirit-haunting peaks in their midst and feel how "distance, alas, bath lent enchantment to the view, and clothed the mountains in their azure hue." Alas! alas! that knowledge should come from us, and that we should see the celestial fields above with stars, when, perchance, the earth of the one is bare and the blue of the other utterly obscured.

A few moments of sudden absolute darkness and we find we have passed for the first time through a tunnel! Black as Erebus is the heart of that spur of the Blue Ridge through which we have gone, but if we stand on the platform and look back we see only an arch like a bridge and a dark cavity. We become conscious now that we are quite out of the land of the Pine, those towering brown trees, and their ever green needles, their sonorous music, the lulling melody that from a child could soothe us, the blazing fire its resplendent wood afforded, that from a child could cheer us, we find we have left behind, and spite of our wondering we are aware of the existence of a soft spot somewhere in the vicinity of our vest pocket by a painful throb and a moisture about the eyes!

Dear old piney woods, we shall love you as long as we live; and if we go to Alaska or California, where the trees grow so big that a dancing hall can be made of the trunk, we will still account no other trees so dear!

We are "gwine to Arkansas," says a nasal voice, and we turn to look at a specimen of the genus traveler, a good type of a class. He looks very much as if Nature had begun on him with a view to making a peppery-tempered, weak minded woman, neglecting, consequently, to mark the brows, to heighten or broaden the cheeks, to force out the nose, but inflicted instead that abiding, useless-to-extend-against evidence of mental feeblity in a man's face—a small, turned up nose!! This watery-eyed and rubicund fellow, who has precipitated his head into matrimony at a twenty has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about promiscuously under the seats at night and fare roughly through the day, the wretched state of his family a capacious family reservoir in the shape of a carpet-bag, and drenched with bad water that seems a barometer on the name contrasted with the pure liquid that gurgles from mossy, fifty fountains in the hilly and forested hills. The poor little creature has his wife and three babies along, evidently "checked through" or they would before this have come up missing; as it is they roll about